United States Cannot Pull Out Of Viet Nam

No one likes the situation in Viet Nam. Few will quarrel with that statement. On the other hand there are many diverse opinions as to what should be done and what the United States should or should not do.

One very important point which is ignored by most commentators is that the war in South Viet Nam is not just a little isolated incident, it is a battle in the continuing war for world domination.

The United States simply cannot pull out of South Viet Nam. Should she do so, the first result would be the overrunning of the country by the communists. It would be an end to any hope of self-determination by the South Vietnamese. And it would be an admission that the United States is powerless to aid small countries which had hoped to develop their own destinies, free from outside interference.

Retreat from Viet Nam would be a signal for the communists to adopt a more belligerent attitude in their relations with the rest of the world. It would encourage them to step up activities in other areas. It would be regarded everywhere as an indication of the inability or lack of will of the free world to prevent aggression.

Retreat from Viet Nam would be tantamount to abandoning all South East Asia to the communists. South Viet Nam itself would fall quickly. Cambodia, Thailand, Burma, Malaysia, Indonesia and probably the Philippines and Formosa would quickly follow.

Japan would be affected and certainly Australia and New Zealand would be in a desperate position. They would practically be cut off from the rest of the Western World.

Viet Nam is not an isolated incident. It is a world question.

It is, however, but another link in a long pattern. There was the Iran incident in 1946 and the communist attempt to take over Greece and Turkey in 1947. There was the seizure of Czechoslovakia in 1948 and the communist invasion of Korea; the uprising in Malaysia and the rebellion in the Philippines. And Cuba.

The United States is in a difficult position in Viet Nam, but great things are at stake there. She is fighting out war there and deserves our approbation rather than our odium.

The Colors Of The Flag

Some have been wondering why the shade of red was selected for the Canadian flag. Some would have preferred a darker shade. Here is the official explanation:

White and red are the colors for Canada, officially declared and appointed by King George V in November 1921, in a proclamation of Canada's Coat of Arms recommended to His Majesty by the Canadian government.

The precise authority for the colors is found, according to heraldic experts, in the wreath and mantling on and flowing from the helmet surmounting the shield of the Coat of Arms.

White and red, of course, are also the colors of the background and three maple leaves found in the third division of the shield, which is the distinguishing Canadian symbol in the shield.

The design of the Coat of Arms, incidentally, was recommended by a group of distinguished Canadian officials appointed in 1919 by Sir Robert Borden. This would suggest that both major political parties had a hand in deciding the color. The color cannot be a "political issue."

As for the design, the maple leaf has long been emblematic of Canada. The researchers of a former president of the Royal Society of Canada led him to conclude that "the maple leaf was looked upon as a fit emblem for Canadians as early as 1700 if not before." Maple leaves were used widely by Canadians for decorative purposes in Toronto and elsewhere when the Prince of Wales visited Canada in 1860. Eight years later they appeared in the Coat of Arms granted by Queen Victoria to Ontario and Quebec, and in 1921, a similar sprig of maple leaves was used as the distinctive Canadian symbol in the new Coat of Arms for Canada granted by George V.

No significance can properly be attached to the 11 points of the leaf in the flag design. It is stylized or conventional as is common when things found in nature are incorporated into flags, banners or arms.

Now That It's Here...

From The Financial Post, Toronto:

The flag here proudly shown, in correct proportions and color, is now the national flag of Canada by decision of Parliament and Royal Proclamation. From Feb. 15 it will be our country's banner at home and abroad, on land and sea.

The bold, simple design has great merit. It will be brilliantly visible and distinguishable at long distances and great heights. No one will ever mistake this flag for the flag of any other nation.

Canadians have debated "the flag question" for decades. A distinctly Canadian flag has long been promised by many political leaders including the late Mackenzie King who held office for 21 years. Up to now, none of these promises were kept.

Prime Minister Pearson is our first leader to act on pre-election promises to give Canadians a flag of their own. This pledge he gave. This pledge he has made good on, despite the difficulties of doing so.

The decision has been taken. The matter is now closed. Most Canadians still hold sentimental affections for the old flag. But now that we have a new one, controversy should be hushed. It is the future welfare of our nation and its unity which really matter now.

This is the flag that will henceforth mean Canada in the eyes of the world. This is the flag that Canadians should henceforth loyally fly, honor and cherish. It will gather traditions as it flies.

The "Kikaninny" Migrate To Better East's Lakes

TORONTO (CP)—Little Redfish, a freshwater native of British Columbia, is being enlisted in the campaign to revitalize the Lake Ontario and Lake Huron fisheries. He'll get a four-year trial.

The kokanee salmon, a variety of sockeye, has been chosen for planting in Ontario because it is the one salmon that has adapted to freshwater existence.

Like the sockeye, kokanee spawn in streams and lake shores in fall and early winter with the young fish moving into open water areas of lakes in spring. Unlike the sockeye, however, the kokanee remains in the lake system its entire life while the sockeye leaves for the ocean after one year.

Some 1,500,000 kokanee eggs were brought from British Columbia last November. Half were sent to the fisheries research station at Glenora, south-west of Belleville, for planting in Lake Ontario. The remaining half went to the Chatham-Kent hatchery near Owen Sound for Lake Huron planting.

Arrangements were made for a second shipment of eggs from Colorado and Montana. This variety of kokanee spawns later in the year than those from B.C. Regarded as a fine table fish with rich red flesh that is good either fresh or smoked, the kokanee gets its nickname from its color at spawning time. It loses its silvery appearance and turns a bright red with a greenish head.

REACH IS INCHES

If suitable spawning areas are found, the fish is usually present in large numbers, and catches of 30 kokanee a day by anglers are not uncommon in the West.

In native waters the kokanee is often small at maturity but the same stock planted elsewhere has attained lengths of 18 inches and more. Ontario fisheries experts will be happy if they reach 15 inches.

The department of fisheries has hastened to assure fishermen that the kokanee project won't interfere with the stocking of lake trout or the program for controlling lampreys, the parasitic eels that attach themselves to fish with their suckermouth mouths.

It hopes the kokanee will be unharmed by the lamprey, which has ravaged the Great Lakes fisheries, because it grows before reaching a size attractive to the eels.

About half the eggs received from B.C. were planted in selected sites in Lake Ontario streams and in streams on the Bruce Peninsula, Georgian Bay and Manitoulin Island. The rest were to be planted as fry in late winter and early spring.

Since the kokanee life span is three or four years, the planting program is to be continued until 1968, by which time fisheries researchers should have enough information on which to base further plans.

West Coast salmon have been planted in the Great Lakes in the past without success, but the kokanee has never been tried before, even though it appears to have the best chance of making good in its new home.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Children's Dose Of Vaccinations

By DR. JOSEPH G. MOLNER

Let's follow up yesterday's column of vaccinations for adults with the proper protection for children.

Current practice depends on a multiple vaccine for infants, usually a four-way type which includes polio, tetanus, diphtheria, whooping cough and diptheria.

The ideal schedule is to give this vaccine at 3, 4 and 5 months of age, and at 1, 2 and 3 years. This builds up a firm foundation of protection. Subsequent boosters of the necessary types should follow at five-year intervals thereafter.

Specifically, diphtheria and tetanus boosters should be given at the ages of 10 and 15 and then the tetanus every five years for life, as with the polio vaccine.

But the multiple vaccine, by itself, isn't enough. The small-pox vaccination must also be given, certainly before school age (most schools, of course, demand it by then). This, also, should be followed up with a booster every five years.

Finally, there is a new vaccination for measles, and I hope that parents will not be as apathetic about giving it as some of them were about polio vaccine.

To do the most good, measles vaccine should be started when a child is about 3 or 4 months old.

There are two major types, and your doctor may favor one or the other. First, there is an "inactivated" or "killed-virus" type, with two inoculations being given a month apart, and a third about two months later.

The alternative is a live-virus vaccine which, however, often causes what is in effect a mild case of measles. To keep the symptoms of this at a minimum, immune globulin is administered "at the same time."

Either method gives excellent protection. Which one will turn out to be the preferable one as far as administration goes, remains to be seen.

Remember that measles in many cases is a childhood disease and just a nuisance one that is taken for granted. However, in a steady proportion of cases, complications develop.

These can cause lifelong handicaps, such as faulty hearing, and others. And every year some 100 deaths from measles are reported.

None of these basic vaccinations for children should be omitted. And, as outlined yesterday, boosters to maintain some of them at effective levels of protection should be continued every five years.

What about influenza protection for children? If we can subdue flu among adults, this may not be necessary for younger people.

In any event, I am sure that as yet we are only on the threshold of learning what other ailments can be prevented, even though it already is one of the greatest life-savers devised by mankind.

NOTE TO MRS. E. B.: Menstrual irregularity, in itself, is from many causes totally unrelated to cancer. Correcting these—rather than fear of cancer at only age 33—should be the reason for seeing a doctor.

Judge Mackenzie added this suggestion: "Put it in your pocket every morning. It's your key to the front door of state prison."

The judge said he obtained a supply of old keys—none of which fit the front door of state prison—from a locksmith.

WASHINGTON CALLING

Canada Catches Economic Sniffle

By GORDON DONALDSON
Daily Courier Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—When Washington sneezes Canada is liable to catch pneumonia. And when Washington tightens its belt, its neighbor may get fearful cramps in the stomach.

So Canadian officials here had a sinking feeling as they awaited President Johnson's cure for the U.S. balance-of-payments deficit.

Last year three billion dollars more left America than came in, and Johnson has been under pressure to stop the drain. But the cure when it came was not nearly as drastic as had been anticipated.

It will cost Canada several hundred million dollars in tourist income and will make Americans more difficult to come by. But on the positive side, it will force Canadians to live more within their means and slow down the sellout of Canadian resources to the United States—what Finance Minister Walter Gordon tried to do a couple of years ago.

BIG FEAR
The big Canadian fear was that Johnson would end the Canadian exemption to the U.S. interest equalization tax, which imposes a penalty of up to 15 per cent on American residents who buy foreign securities.

This was President Kennedy's main effort to keep U.S. money in the country and originally it applied to all foreign stocks and bonds.

After violent protests from Ottawa Kennedy exempted new Canadian issues—which meant provinces and municipalities could continue to borrow money in New York for cherished projects.

In the final quarter of last year they borrowed about $600 million, much of which was being raised by the sale of U.S. Treasury bonds to the Canadian stock market.

However, he agreed to let Canada go on borrowing without penalty so long as this sort of thing didn't happen again. He said he had "firm assurance" from the Canadian government.

U.S. businessmen and bankers are being produced and told to limit their investments, bank holdings and loans outside the U.S.

Congress has been asked to revise tax laws to make investment in U.S. firms more appealing to foreigners.

LBO skirted the main issue in the balance of payments problem—the American tourist. The U.S. uses one point six billion dollars a year more than half its dollar income through the tourist trade.

Despite campaigns urging them to "See the U.S.A. First," the tourist gaily saw their dollars on foreign lands.

The treasury and federal reserve board had a draft plan to keep them at home—plant a $100 bill in every American's pocket very time he left the country.

Johnson spurned that, well knowing how unpopular it would be. Instead he proposed to reduce the value of duty-free goods a tourist can bring home from $500 to $200.

In effect, this is a two-thirds cut, because duty will now be levied on the retail instead of the wholesale value of the articles purchased.

Americans buy more than $500 million worth of Canadian goods every year. Even with the increase in smuggling, this is obviously going to be reduced by more than half.

Johnson also moved to eliminate the "free port" system under which tourists could obtain duty-free goods while abroad and have them released when they return. The new rules would require all duty-free articles to be carried with the tourist when he returned.

The president's order to his secretary of defense to "buy American" won't have much effect on Canada, which has a separate defense-sharing agreement with the U.S.

So Washington's big economic sneeze may cause sniffles in Canada, but no serious ailment.

The finest piece of abuse in American political history is John Randolph's description of an opponent as "a being so brilliant, yet so corrupt, which, like a rotten mackerel by moonlight, shines and stinks."

This has now been applied to U.S. policy in Viet Nam, which suffers with ailments but has no legal justification whatsoever.

In 1954 Geneva Conference Agreement, still supposedly in force, provided that no modern weapons participate in Viet Nam, and there be no buildup of troops, local or foreign.

The U.S. never signed the agreement but offered a declaration that it would refrain from "the threat or use of force."

The 1962 Laos Agreement, which was signed by the U.S., banned foreign intervention.

America and also intervention, but after the French were expelled by the Communists in 1954, since then it has steadily increased its number of troops and dropped any pretense that they are "military advisers." They are fighting soldiers and there are 23,000 of them.

The most modern jets are used and Hawk ground-attack missiles capable of knocking down a plane at 60,000 feet, have just been added.

The U.S. has been bombing targets in Laos since July 1964. The justification for all these breaches of the Geneva Accords is that the Communists there at first by supporting guerrilla warfare in the rural Communist parts of Laos.

Undoubtedly they do. But even U.S. state department sources admit the Viet Cong guerrillas in South Vietnam are having of the land, supported by local South Vietnamese and Communist forces.

By October of the war to cover North Vietnam, the U.S. is using a shovel to sweep for and mine.

And the time comes, in October about 100 Canadians, with their eyes covered and ears plugged, apparently unaware that there's a war in Viet Nam, report came in the summer of 1962.

South Pacific Era Drawing To Close

BUCKLAND (CP)—The end of an era in the South Pacific Islands has come with the closing of No. 5 Squadron of the Royal New Zealand Air Force at Laulaha Bay, in Fiji.

For a quarter-century, its flying boat, filled both military and rescue roles and they had become a lifeline for tropical islands over a vast expanse of the Pacific. The withdrawal of the squadron has created problems which the Pacific Islands are finding hard to solve.

The base at Laulaha Bay, in the Fiji colony of Viti Levu, was established in 1941. During the war the squadron's aircraft rescued 60 Allied airmen from the sea.

After the war the flying boats became mules of all work for the South Pacific. In addition to reconnaissance tasks, they flew mercy missions in great variety—medical emergencies, hurricane relief, supply dropping, searches for missing ships and cargoes, disturbances, flights and many more.

The Pacific Islands have few airfields but thousands of sheltered lagoons on which a flying boat can operate.

COVERED OCEAN
The squadron operated over 7,000,000 square miles of ocean from the Gilbert Islands in the north to the Cook Islands in the east and the New Hebrides in the west—the greatest area ever covered by any one squadron.

In Sunderlands, however, are also used for reconnaissance and antisubmarine patrols and are being replaced by jet fighters. The New Zealand government, aware of the value of the flying boats to the Pacific Islands, searched everywhere for suitable military aircraft for replacement, but found none. It has ordered land-based Orion, which will operate from Auckland, New Zealand.

A detachment of two Sunderlands will be based at Suva, Fiji, for rescue and other work after the Orions take up operations.

An open letter to some Buckaroos... In the space of a few short weeks you've been toasted and roasted, hailed and railed against, cheered and jeered. Some of the breaks went with you and others against. You've tasted the fruit of victory and the bitter pill of defeat "but you ain't down yet."

No matter how your coach, manager, trainer, or stickboy feels, no matter what the wishes of your thousands of fans and followers of junior hockey in the Valley, the final outcome rests in your hands and in those of a dozen or less scrappy Blades who won't be down and play dead.

Many have tested you as the best team in the OJHL, yet you failed to finish first. True, you carried Kamloops down to the wire, but still they came out on top which must prove something. Throughout the season you've played some fired-up hockey but you've also had some lulls.

You've given your supporters plenty to cheer but you've also provided your critics with lots of ammunition. Your up and down series with Vernon is a prime example of your hot and cold antics. The faithful of both localities have been riding a roller coaster since the set began. There can't be many weak-hearted fans in Kelowna because none have succumbed yet.

But what about you? ... You're not really the super team some have made you out to be. You're like the giant with feet of clay. But you are only human after all and have the same resources as your adversaries except you have the quantity but perhaps not the quality of the 19 or 21 Blades. You're a good team, or is it durability? Theoretically, your 15 bodies should, in the long series, have worn down the under-manned opponent but this doesn't seem the case.

Each game they prove they're able to stay with—and even surpass—you, as they did Sunday. What keeps them going? Do they have more desire? Are they more serious? I think not. They have a torch behind them and are playing inspired hockey. But I am convinced you have the spark also and now that showdown is here you more than any outside observer—realize the stakes.

Like I heard somewhere... there's no tomorrow, there's just tonight. And this is the setting for Wednesday... Either you rack up the balls and put away the curs of you get set for another break. The Rockets are waiting in the wings and whether they have a preference has no bearing on your destiny at this moment. What happens later, well that's another story.

The question to be settled, for what should be a packed house in the final game, is whether 10 or 11 overworked but determined visitors can dump a full complement of re-awakened Buckaroos in their own court.

Should you win, the tin will resemble something akin to a Memorial Cup victory. Should you lose there will be a let-down and disappointment but I'm sure no shame—unless you lay down somewhere along the route. If you battle every inch of the way, what more can be asked. It will only mean you were beaten by a better team.

So as we see it you must leave no room for doubt. If you must go down, take a leaf from Vernon's book... don't let up even an instant. And if victory is yours and it just may well be... wear it well!

B.C. Squares Record At 1-1 In Schoolboy Curling Meet

Northern Ontario, with a bye in the second round, was also undefeated going into the third round today of the 11-round round-robin, and held down third place with one victory.

The Ontario rink skipped by Paul Savage defeated Manitoba 15-4 in the opening round and then edged Nova Scotia 8-7 in an extra end.

Saskatchewan, skipped by Dan Fink, completed its two-game sweep by crushing Prince Edward Island 14-3 after defeating Quebec 9-5.

The day's action left British Columbia, Manitoba, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Alberta all in fourth place with 1-1 records.

In other second-round action, Manitoba's Grant Wuckert walloped Bob Schroder of Quebec 12-5, Dennis Perry of B.C. defeated Newfoundland's Fred Duran 13-6, and New Brunswick, skipped by Tony Richardson, defeated Doug Dobry of Alberta 7-4.

State Body Adopts Order Asking For Pro Hockey Probe

BOSTON (AP)—The Massachusetts House of Representatives adopted Monday an order, filed by representative Gerald J. Morrissey, calling for an investigation of professional hockey in the state in the light of a controversial New York-Boston National Hockey League game three years ago.

If the state senate also passes the order, an investigating committee will be set up.

Representative Morrissey said in a statement that "the particular game in question involved Boston Bruins, and was played March 22, 1962 against New York Rangers in Boston and was alleged to have been manipulated in favor of New York." "The allegations were not made by an irate Boston fan, although there were many, but by a former top league referee, Eddie Powers."

New York won the game 4-3 and clinched a Stanley Cup playoff berth.

Representative W. Adams, president of the Bruins, later Monday issued the following statement: "The National Hockey League has just completed its own investigation of the incident giving rise to the inquiry for the second time and is satisfied that the charges made by the ex-National Hockey League official are wholly unfounded."

Grid Deaths Increase In '64

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Dr. Floyd R. Eastwood, chairman of the American Football Coaches Association, said today deaths in U.S. football rose to 45 in 1964 from 24 in 1963.

Twenty-seven of the deaths could be traced to traumatic blows while the others came from indirect causes, including heart failure, heart stroke and infection, the professor said.

Twenty-one of the traumatic deaths were suffered in high school games, three in college, two in sandlot play and one by a professional athlete, Eastwood said.

The majority of the victims played in the backfield and died of head injuries, Dr. Eastwood said.

Dr. Eastwood is a professor at Los Angeles State College and has been keeping records of gridiron fatalities for 33 years. His report on 1964 deaths was reported in the medical tribune.

Rule Changes Please Trimble

MONTREAL (CP)—Jim Trimble, coach of the Eastern Football Conference Montreal Alouettes, said Monday he is generally satisfied with rule changes proposed by the Canadian Football League weekend meeting in Ottawa.

He said in an interview the CFL decision to limit a team to three naturalized Canadian players will "help us more than some of the other teams."

Trimble said only two imports from his 1964 roster—halfback George Dixon and end Jim Reynolds—are eligible to become naturalized citizens before this season starts.

Quarterback Bernie Faloney and defensive half Ralph Goldston, both acquired in a major trade with Hamilton Tiger-Cats, also both could fit into this category.

Durrelle Outpoints Savoie Monday

MONTREAL (CP)—Joey Durrelle successfully defended his Canadian welterweight boxing title by gaining a hard-fought decision Monday night over Armand Savoie of Montreal in a 13-round championship bout.

Durrelle, 26, of Bale Ste. Anne, N.B., a cousin of former Canadian light heavyweight champion Yvon Durrelle, built an early lead and over-powered the 35-year-old Savoie in the first defence of his title.

Durrelle, ranked eighth by the World Boxing Association, weighed in at 147 pounds. Savoie weighed 144½.

FRICK CONSIDERS NEW YORK (AP)—Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick met Monday with representatives of the Nankai Hawks, but made no final decision on the case of the disputed Japanese pitcher, Masanori Murakami, claimed by both the Hawks and the San Francisco Giants.

Campbell Fines Hockey Brawlers

MONTREAL (CP)—Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, announced Monday he has fined Jim Roberts of Montreal Canadiens an extra $100 for his part in last Wednesday's brawl during a Canadiens-Maple Leaf game in Toronto.

He also fined 10 more Canadians and six Leafs an extra $25 each.

Campbell said in a statement Roberts jumped off his bench while officials were getting control of a fight between Frank Mahovlich of Toronto and Ted Harris of Montreal.

He said Roberts' action was followed by 10 more Canadians leaving the bench along with six Leafs—an exodus which resulted in "the continuance of the fighting which was already in progress and produced many more fights and scuffling to the point where game officials were unable to handle the situation."

Campbell said Roberts left his stick and gloves behind when he left the bench and that while it is "not certain that his action necessarily caused the subsequent exodus from both benches, it is reasonable to assume it did because no one had more during the four or five minutes of the fighting among the players who were legally on the ice at the time."

OJHL Series at Fever Pitch Stage Set For Showdown

It's showdown time in Kelowna. The site is the Kelowna and District Memorial Arena 8:30 p.m. Wednesday night and the principals are Kelowna Buckaroos and their tormentors, Vernon Blades.

Their best-of-seven Okanagan Junior Hockey League semi-final series has suddenly become a sudden-death issue. A band of hustling Blades made sure of that Sunday at Vernon when they rattled in five third period goals to overcome Kelowna 7-5 and knot the set at three games apiece.

The winner advances into the best-of-seven final against Kamloops Blades, who downed Penitents-Summerland Bruins in a seven game semi-final.

There are two Bucks ailing but they should still see action. Morello Verna has a sore chest and Lynn Swanson pulled his hip at Monday night's workout. Terry Strong is still on the sidelines with a fractured wrist.

Culley was uncertain Monday night what combinations he would throw at the charged up Blades but he is considering 300 have already been punched. Verna, Cousins and Kasubuchi for Vernon fans, on Monday.

DON CULLEY

CHANGE
The only change coach Don Culley foresees now is the insertion of defenceman Dave Hecko back at the lineup, in place of winger Gordie Schnepf who is back at UBC.

Mikita Nudging Teammate In Repeat Bid For Crown

MONTREAL (CP)—Centre Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks has stepped up his drive for a repeat win of the National Hockey League scoring title, inadvertently aided by teammate Bobby Hull's four-game absence because of a knee injury.

Hull led the league by 14 points on Jan. 7 but Mikita narrowed the lead to one point after last week's action.

Official NHL statistics released today give Hull 67 points made up of 38 goals and 29 assists. Mikita picked up four points in Hawks' four games to give him 66 points made up of 30 goals and 36 assists. Mikita is also the league bad man with 138 minutes in penalties.

Hull has 14 more goals than his nearest competitor, Norm Ullman of Detroit Red Wings who is in third place with 52 points. Mikita has 10 more assists than his nearest rival, teammate Pierre Pilote.

Hull has 10 games left in which to score 13 goals needed to set a season record. Mikita is 12 assists short of the season record held by Jean Beliveau of Montreal Canadiens and Andy Bathgate of Toronto Maple Leafs.

Pilote's 36 assists is 10 short of the season record for defencemen he holds with Bill Gadsby of Detroit Red Wings. Toronto leads in the goaltenders' race with 125 goals against scored against Johnny Bower and Terry Sawchuk. Detroit's Roger Crozier, who leads the league in shutouts with five, is next with 123 goals against in 304 games.

Detroit leads in team penalties with 817 minutes.

UNCERTAIN
"This is only thinking out loud at this stage," Culley said. "By game time I might change my mind and go with the original line of Verna, Couves and Kasubuchi."

Vernon, meanwhile, will probably dress their regular 11 or 12 players with some seeing 30 to 40 minutes service.

World-Wide Participation "Needed" To Combat Want

TORONTO (CP) — No economic or technological changes trigger the world's economic problems, said Paul G. Hoffman, director of the United Nations Special Fund, said today. He told 300 delegates to a world conference on regional development and economic growth that the world's economic problems are not the result of technological changes, but of a lack of world-wide participation in the development of the world's resources. YOUR HOROSCOPE

FOR TOMORROW
Current planetary influences stress the value of teamwork, since most persons will be in a congenial mood. To get the most out of the day, get an early start, clean up pending matters and start planning for the future. Ideas along the latter line will be more practical in the P.M. than they will be in the forenoon, however.

FOR THE BIRTHDAY
If tomorrow is your birthday, your horoscope indicates that while, presently, you may be lured at slow-moving progress in your job and monetary affairs, it would not be advisable to make drastic changes in your plans and procedures which are basically sound. Keep on trying and you should achieve no small success by the middle of April. In fact, the period from April 15 through May 15 should prove highly gratifying on all counts. Next good fiscal cycles: mid-August, late November and the three-months beginning with the end of December. Do consolidate all gains in October, however, and be prepared for the financial opportunities presented for year's end.

Along personal lines, you should have a generally good year, but it will be extremely important that you avoid friction in close circles during early June and in mid-November. Best periods for romance: late April (an all-around good month for Aquarians), late June and late July; for travel: late April, June, mid-August; also next September and December.

A child born on this day will grow up to be an extremely trustworthy, yet gentle in the arts and endowed with a gift of clairvoyance.
